

“On Centre” A Monthly Lunchinar Series

We're excited to bring you a monthly webinar series designed to support our current and future clients on challenging topics we hear come up again and again. Given the current state of the economy, certain topics have a more urgent and critical focus than they have in the past.

- How can we effectively manage change when things are changing from one minute to the next?
- How do we increase employee morale when employee benefits are being reduced, work expectations have gone up, and we have a lack of reward structures to utilize?
- How can I get a better idea of what the workforce needs so they can be more productive?
- How can our supervisors and managers provide critical performance feedback that will increase an employee's productivity rather than damage the relationship?

If these questions are relevant to you and your workforce, please join us for one or all of our sessions where we will provide you with insight, tangible takeaways that you can utilize immediately, resources for moving forward, and connections to others who have experience with the same issues.
